Awaiting Definite News.

The apparent delay of the administration in announcing its policy in the Nicaraguan affair is attributed to the lack of definite information as to the exact status of the two Americans, Cannon and Groce, whose summary execution aroused a storm of protest in this country. Reports are conflicting as to the part taken by the two men, as well as to the manner of their death.

Had Commissions in Army.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 25.—
Grace and Cannon, the two Americans executed by order of President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, last week, held commissions in the insurgent army, according to private advices received here tonight from Bluefields, where the revolutionists' government is located. The dispatch stated that the State Department of the United States had been notified to this effect. The State Department has been anxious to clear up the point whether the two men had commissions or were merely acting in their individual capacities, for in the former event they would have been entitled to treatment as prisoners of war.

law. The other side is that they were shot by order of President Zelaya as a result of personal antagonism without a proper trial.

Status of Americans.

Unfortunately the revolutionary forces under Estrada have not yet been regularly recognized as belligerents by the United States or any other government, and it is a mooted question with the officials as to whether Cannon and Groce, under all the circumstances, were really entitled to treatment as regular prisoners of war. The efforts of the administration are being mainly directed to obtaining reliable information on these points before submitting demands on the Zelaya government for reparation. Whatever else the administration may do, it it is generally accepted that it will soon recognize the belligerency of the Estrada revolutionists, and thus obviate for the future such excuse as Zelaya may have had for his summary course of action in the case of the two captured Americans.

The question of Indemnity for the execution of the two Americans depends on the character of the evidence received from American officials at Managua.
